JENNINGS WITH M'GRAW.

May Manage New York National League Team.

New York, Oct. 29.—Reports were current in baseball circles here to-day that Hugh Jennings, until the close of the present season manager of the Detroit Americans, had been offered a position with the New York National league club.

Jennings recently received managerial offers from two National league clubs. He and McGraw have been close friends since the days of the Baltimore Orioles.

The fact that Christy Mathewson has been lost to the Giants by illness and Johnny Evers through his appointment as manager of the Chicago Nationals, lends foundation to the report.

Rheumatiz in One Reel.

"Well, Eph," said his ex-employer, meeting the old dandy on the street, "how is the rheumatism these days?" "Porely, sah, porely," was the dejected reply. "Relish me, Marse Bixby, I've just a movin' picture ob pain." Boston Transcript.

An Effective Compromise.

Heck—You say you never have any domestic squabbles; how do you avoid them?

Peck—Well, you see, immediately after we were married my wife and I came to an understanding. She said: "Now, Henry, we must neither of us be selfish and always trying to run things. We must make mutual concessions. I propose that when we agree on any matter you are to have your own way, and when we disagree I am to have my way. Then we shall get along nicely." And we have.—Boston Transcript.

To Feel Fit to Work

you must keep your stomach well, your liver active, your bowels regular and blood pure.

If you get up in the morning tired; if you get exhausted with the slightest exertion—you can depend upon it that your liver is torpid and needs waking up. A few doses of SEVEN BARKS, nature's great remedy, will "wake up" that lazy liver, and make you feel like new.

If your liver has been overworked, it would cause your whole system to fill up with acids and poisons that would make you feel weak, tired out and sick. You can easily remove the acids and poisons from your system by taking from 10 to 20 drops of SEVEN BARKS in a little water after meals. It will keep your bowels moving naturally every day, cleanse your system thoroughly eliminate undigested food, and bring you back to active and normal health again.

SEVEN BARKS is nature's remedy, made from the extracts of roots and herbs, and has stood the test for many, many years, and will certainly give you a feeling of new life and vigor. To feel fresh and fit for your daily duties, you must keep your stomach and liver active and bowels regular.

CONDITION IMPROVED.

Rumanian Peasants More Contented Since Reform Act Went Into Effect.

Jassy, Rumania, Oct. 6.—Rumania's agrarian reform act giving 5,000,000 acres of state, institutional and private lands to the peasants, has been in operation a year and has brought about a degree of content and satisfaction among the population heretofore unknown. For the first time in Rumania's history the peasants have been given outright ownership of land. King Ferdinand was the first to give up a part of his large land holdings to the people.

The expropriation of large private estates by the government did not please the proprietor of classes, but it has had a steady influence upon the temper and spirit of the people, who now have little sympathy for bolshevist doctrines. Nearly 85 per cent of the people of Rumania are supported by agriculture and under their ownership the land, during the last year, has yielded larger and better crops than ever before.

Five-sixths of the population of Rumania consists of the peasantry, who combine thrift with industry. In fact, the peasant class constitutes the real Rumania. The whole hope of the country is bound up in it. A large percentage of illiteracy prevails, but the people possess many good qualities. One sees the same hard, earnest, earnestness that obtained in the middle ages, the same goodness of heart and simplicity of manner which always characterize highly stratified societies where people know their stations in life and act accordingly.

The bulk of the Rumanian nation still lives in dirt-floored huts made of woven branches and plastered with mud. These hovels usually are windowless and stoveless. The people sleep upon the floor or upon benches with their day clothes on, often six to 10 of them in one miserable low-ceiled room, 10 feet square. In many cases the poultry, pigs and cattle occupy the same room.

While Rumanian cities have made decided progress during the last 25 years, the country—the real heart of Rumania—has been practically stationary. The ox-drawn wooden plough, the hand scythe, and the wheat flail used in biblical times are still to be seen. Although producing enough wheat to supply all Europe with bread, the Rumanian peasant does not touch white bread. His diet consists almost entirely of a sort of corn-meal mush (mamaiga) boiled so stiff that when it cools it resembles corn bread of the southern states. This meagre food, insufficiently supplemented with fats, is accountable for the large amount of pellagra in Rumania, perhaps equalled nowhere else in the world.

"In the Sweat of Thy Face."

Popular understanding of the curse pronounced on our original ancestors is that the pair, who had been having a continuous good time doing nothing, were condemned to work for a living thereafter and forever. "By the sweat of thy brow shalt thou earn thy bread," was the sentence as we commonly read it. Most of us have taken pretty cheerfully to this sort of a sentence, finding it a blessing in this disguise.

But this was not the sentence recorded to Holy Writ. According to the story of the first inhabited garden, our first ancestral pair was not idling away their days. They were put into the garden "to dress and keep it." Even such a rich garden needed dressing and keeping; and this probably occupied much of their time. Any gardener knows what it means to keep up a first-class garden. The only reason why we may infer an easy life for these original gardeners is that they went out of the garden to harder work and poorer pay.

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread"—that was the original sentence. This was not a command, but a prediction of the doleful thing that would happen to this fallen man and wife. From wholesome labor with dignity and ease, they were to fall into habits of sweaty haste in getting a living, a haste so urgent and so blind that food would be snatched and swallowed, while the face was still dripping with sweat. This was, indeed, a curse.

This curse still remains on earth in small spots or large patches. Wherever we see a well-laid tablecloth, kitchen matrons with clean aprons, workmen stopping at washbasin and looking glass before sitting at table, father saying grace before serving, and the family waiting to be served before eating, we see man rising superior to this curse. The factory worker who steps to the sink before attacking the dinnerpail, is free of the burden of this curse. The toiler in the sweat shop, the man who forgets to wash before meals, is still far back at the spot where Adam fell. Man has it easily within his power to lift this curse. And with the lifting comes an added blessing. Good digestion waits on appetite for him who lets washing wait on eating. Hasty, unclean eating has killed more of the human race than war ever did. —Minneapolis Journal.

Success and Failure.

Elihu Root on his 75th birthday reception in New York talked philosophically about success and failure.

"After all," said a poet, "it's no disgrace to fail if you have done your best."

"Maybe not," said Mr. Root, "but all the same it's pretty rough to have to admit that the best you can do is to fail."—Detroit Free Press.

LETTER BY E. W. KENT.

To the Voters of Orange County Regarding Election, Etc.

To the voters of Orange county: I have seen the press notice dated, Chelsea, Vt., Oct. 16, 1920, signed by the Orange county Republican committee, in which they state the committee's position and give their reasons for taking the stand which they do regarding my candidacy for the office of assistant judge. The committee in their statement did not tell the voters that on two occasions I demanded a hearing before this same committee and in both instances it was refused. I do not know what reason this committee should have in refusing to grant me a hearing, unless it be owing to the fact that one of its members was the defeated candidate for the office of assistant judge at the recent primary election.

My former statement which appeared over my signature states frankly my entire connection with this circular which is claimed to be libelous. I have felt and do now that my innocent connection with it was of such a nature that it ought not to deprive me of becoming a candidate for public office, and if elected, from holding public office. I have been told that there were many of these circulars printed and that many persons circulated them in Orange county, whose names are known to the prosecuting authorities; if this is true, and if I am guilty of a criminal offense, there certainly must be many others, equally guilty; yet I have not heard of any criminal prosecution being instituted against any other persons, except one. It would seem to me that much of this whole matter is purely one of politics, otherwise there would have been many other persons charged with this same offense.

I received the nomination, and have decided to stand as the nominee. This demand of the committee that I withdraw my name from the ticket was in the form of an ultimatum, even specifying the date when I should comply with their order. After declining to withdraw and two days after the time set by the committee for me to comply with their demands, the secretary and treasurer of this same committee addressed me as follows:

Chelsea, Vt., 10, 15, '20.
"Hon. Edward W. Kent,
"Randolph Ctr., Vt.
"My Dear Ed.:

"At the meeting of the Orange county Republican committee, held here last week, it was voted to assess the nominees of the September primary election on the Republican ticket, the sum of $10 each, to the end that the committee may have a fund on deposit with which to meet legitimate expenses which arise from time to time, and these assessments will be payable to me as secretary-treasurer of the committee and I await your pleasure.

"Very truly yours,
(Signed) "William H. Sprague."
It would seem that the committee, although demanding my withdrawal as the nominee of my party, and with the idea of drafting some persons to defeat me if possible, at the same time were assessing me for expenses of the committee in so doing. This is one of the many things which have come up in regard to this matter, yet, as I have previously stated, I desire that all voters should exercise their own good judgment and elect whoever they desire for assistant judge. It is for them to say when given the opportunity.

MRS. NELLIE WOODSFORD SPEAKS TO MOTHERS

East Boston.—At 23 Lannon St. Mrs. Nellie Woodsford and her children now "live happy and grateful" to the kind neighbor who recommended Dr. True's Elixir to them. Mrs. Woodsford says: "My bowels were out of order and my breath was bad. I was shaky all over. I had terrible headaches and it seemed I had suffered years before your Dr. True's Elixir was brought to me. After a short time I was myself again, my bowels were all right and I'm full of gratitude." "It may interest you to know also that once since my youngest child was terribly sick and it was a serious case. We all have your Elixir to thank for relieving her of stomach worms."

Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller has done wonders for children and grown-ups since 1851. Pleasant to take, mild in action.—Adv.

Another Kipling Story.

At one time Rudyard Kipling always paid his bills, no matter how small they happened to be, with checks. After a while he discovered to his amazement, that his bank account showed a much larger balance than the stubs of his checkbook warranted. In fact, while he was drawing checks for small amounts almost daily, his money in the bank did not seem to dwindle in the least.

For a long time he was at a loss to account for this astonishing fact until he happened one day to visit an office, the occupant of which was an enthusiastic autograph collector. There the author saw one of his own checks, framed and hanging on the wall. Thus the mystery was solved. It appeared that the local shopkeepers found that they often got more for Kipling's checks by selling them to autograph hunters than they could by cashing them at the bank, and so, although the author kept on drawing checks, his bank balance remained almost intact.—Los Angeles Times.

The Irony of Fate.

"Speakin' of the irony of fate," began Uncle Bill Bottletop.
"What do you know about it?"
"Quite some. This is the first spring that my little mint patch has looked like it was really goin' to amount to something."—Washington Star.
